Tejp (solc.ru) .Galician Left The Galician Left (, Esquerda Galega, EG) was a political current of the Galician Nationalist Bloc formed in 1970 and part of the Galician Nationalist Bloc–Leftist Agreement in 1974. The general secretary of the GNB–Leftist Agreement was Anxo Sousa, and the CGIL was its main supporter. In 1979, the right wing of the CGIL, a.k.a. the "Section of the Movement", merged with the nationalism of the Galician Humanist Party (PAH) of Santiago Álvarez to form the Rally of Galician Nationalist Forces. The EAG was extremely pro-Spanish, nationalist and pro-independence. Its goal was the Galician autonomy, without any mention about the political process that would lead to this goal. However, there were some differences with the CGIL on the independentism. The EAG was therefore expelled by the CGIL in June 1976 when the latter abandoned the autonomy goal. The Galician Left then founded the Galician-Unitary Left, which is currently the left wing of the Galician Nationalist Bloc. The EG's program included the following aspects: Galicianization of the Constitution and law in order to achieve the Galician autonomy; Public policy should take into account the Galician aspect, as well as the CNT's land reform; Civil society should be "enabled" to "participate" in the public debate with all political tendencies. Some members of the EG were also members of the PAH.
