Welcome to the Octopus frontier! Play an old style arcade shoot 'em up. In this vintage arcade action game from 2010, you help defend your home base from strange abominations known as 'Explodipus.' You're equipped with a fast firing ink cannon, which you must use to shoot every single monster on your screen. It's survival of the fastest! Enjoy pure classic arcade action at 60fps, and oh - don't forget the retro 80's sound effects! I've recently created a new version for free for the OUYA, Xbox One, PC (Steam, GOG) and PS4. Can't stop drawing all the time so, thus, this port of my old game on OUYA platform. We'll see how well the emulated free version runs on the OUYA, compared to my old version that run so good on my Xbox One 1TB console and on Playstation 4. Note: the game engine will be cleaner/smoothier for the OUYA version, it will look much better. Here is a nice old video of the game, that would help you to get more insight on how is it play : Due to a lot of flashing lights, this game is NOT recommended for folks with any photosensitive medical conditions. Walking into an amusement arcade during the 1980's overwhelmed your senses. The audio from every arcade machine screamed out for attention, each one fighting to grab the passer by, begging for you to feed it with coins. My Nuclear Octopus is what might have happened had I been born a few years earlier and landed a job designing arcade games in 1984. It's loud, it's simple to pick up and it's tough as old badgers. The graphics are crunchy old sprites, something you might see in an old Commodore 64 game, a BBC Micro game or maybe even an 80's arcade. The logic is simple - you play for a few minutes, you get as far as you can, the game ends. Next time, you play again and try to beat your score. Somewhere along the way, the rest of the world disappears and you find yourself one with the Octopus, in some kind of harmony with the game as, for a short time at least, 100% of your focus goes into keeping back the marauders from another dimension. Lose yourself for a short time, just like we did c9d1549cdd

"Advanced Tactics Gold is not the easiest game to get started. Advanced Tactics Gold uses the same engine as Advanced Tactics, but with a very different interface. This can make it quite a challenge to figure out where to go. Fortunately, VR Designs has put together a number of tips to help players get off on the right foot, or to move around in the first place."---Johannes "H3ud7mon" Tungler, Goin' Boin "This is an awesome looking tactical game which will be a great addition to your collection. However, as a tactical game it requires some skills to operate correctly, as you are going to be doing a lot of clicking. Of course there's also the danger of not clicking at all and losing the battle. It's also an incredible game to play online with friends as they can assist each other in making decisions and trying to turn the tide of a battle."---Phil "Mark76" Hockenberger, Original Scenarios, Planet Gold "Advanced Tactics Gold is a new take on the Advanced Tactics WWII series and we definitely recommend this game to anyone looking for a different tactical experience. The new terrain in Advanced Tactics Gold will undoubtedly add to the game's gameplay and you're going to need a good strategy manual to figure out all of the new options available in this game. With a great community behind it, Advanced Tactics Gold will continue to grow and add to the game so don't be shy in giving this a try. The single player campaign is long and complex but with online play you can help your friends through it and share the fun."---Mark "Ruffian" Ellis, Wargamer magazine, The Official Wargaming Website "Advanced Tactics Gold is a game which looks at land warfare from a completely different perspective. Although the campaign map in the game is somewhat limited, the author of the scenarios packs has put

of Birmingham- Alabama, USA Birmingham was founded in 1871, becoming the capital of the state of Alabama, only 50 years after the founding of the United States. This metropolis has a population of 609,300 people, with an area of 362 square miles. It has long been a major industrial city with many companies in a highly specialized sector for the production of steel and iron. Birmingham is often regarded as the most "majestic city of the South" and its industries and military history are well worth a visit. Birmingham-Alabama houses the first Roman cement factory. "Cement in Birmingham in the 1860s: Events in the Life of a Mid-Southerner", by Linda A. Neal, serves as a wonderful guide to the manufacturing and important role that Birmingham played in the annals of American industry. Eventually becoming the capital of the state of Alabama, today Birmingham-Alabama is the largest city in the South East region of America. It is a mixed city with people of different nations, religions and cultures. It has been a centre of many industries, including power and publishing, but is somewhat infamously noted for its principal source of income - the automobile industry. Birmingham is a city that produces a vast amount of products and it can be difficult to comprehend the vast size of the metropolitan area, having an area of more than 700 square miles. The city also houses some of the most remarkable architecture. The city is home to nearly 3 million people and is sometimes referred to as "America's most densely populated city." This is due to the fact that in 2007 the city had 5,019 people per square mile, compared to America as a whole which has a rate of 871 people per square mile. Birmingham's population continues to grow and is expected to rise to nearly 600,000 people by 2030. The city has one of the highest levels of poverty in the United States, with around 50 percent of the city's children living in poverty. When compared to other major cities, Birmingham has an unusually low police employment rate. This has been a point of debate in the city for many years. Part of the reason for this may be that although the local force is financially sound, its officers lack in the professionalism one would expect. In addition to the low number of police, Birmingham is also known for high crime rates. The Birmingham crime rate is higher than average in America and Birmingham also has over 200 violent crime cases every month. The city's crime is expected to
